Description ø

Octomans were a highly intelligent species who were easily recognizable by their unique gait. As opposed to walking using all their tentacles, octomans moved using six of their tentacles, while their central tentacles were hung in the air and acted as arms. Octomans have very complex brains the size of ours, if not ours, unlike their ancestors which have nine brains, octomans have one, highly complex brain that is as smart as our brains. Octomans have pink skin with lighter shades of pink on the neck. It's "arms" are purple in color. They are 2.3 meters (7.5 feet) tall at maximum and weigh around 15 kilograms (33 pounds). Like their ancestors, octomans have suckers that could detach. These suckers could support 36 kilograms (79.3 pounds) and is useful when lifting something heavy.

Behaviour b

Octomans have various jobs due to their intelligence. Those that have heavily armored suits are working to defend their country from intruders of the same species. Those that have various types of tools are usually miners who dig to search for currency. Like us, octomans also work in offices and build buildings. Octomans also domesticate animals for food or for comfort.

Distribution ø

Octomans were descended from an unspecified species of octopus that came to land and gained more intelligence as a result. Like octopus, they are excellent swimmers, and because of this, they are able to colonize Chaoterra in just a few thousand years. They live in nearly all continents of Chaoterra except for Umos, those that live in Umos usually have jackets suited for the cold.
